Information About the Service

What is the service? SUPA Networks is a broadband service for delivering high-speed Internet to Australian residential and business customers via fixed line infrastructure such as fibre to the premises.

This service is not available in all areas.

What is required to use this service?

- You will need an address listed as being SUPA Networks-ready.
- You will need a SUPA Networks-capable modem/router to access the service. In some cases SUPA Networks may need to install equipment at your premises. A power point may be required, and you will need approval from the building owner for the works to be completed.
- If the premises are in a multi-dwelling building, SUPA Networks may require access to common areas such as the MDF.

What is Included

- Unlimited data when using the SUPA Networks service

What is not Included

- Static IP address
- Hardware (e.g. router or modem). We can supply equipment if required, and will send you a quote.
- Where additional internal cabling or "MDF patching" is required, an external third party such as an electrician will need to be engaged at the customer's expense.
- Dishonour and late payment fees
- Address transfers. If you move to another premises, a new service will be ordered and your current service will be terminated, which may cause a termination fee.

Minimum Term

Plans are month-to-month with no lock-in period. Your service will automatically renew each month unless cancelled before the renewal date.

Other Potential Costs

- If you don't have a router or modem, one can be supplied at an additional outright cost. We will provide you with a quote for the type of service you have.
- You will need to pay for your own internal cabling if required.
- In some cases, your address may be classed as a subsequent install. When this happens there is a $270 new line fee. We will advise you of this before commencing with the install.

New Development Fee

SUPA Networks may charge a $300 (incl. GST) new development fee if you are the first connection in a newly developed area, or the first connection in an established area where the number of premises has increased. SUPA Networks usually collects this fee at property settlement; if it was not collected then, SUPA Networks invoices it directly when your order is processed. It is not charged by Quokka Net. We will always tell you before your order is submitted.
